Most marketers have "tried ChatGPT". Far fewer have sat down for a full day and rebuilt how they actually work.

That's the difference our workshop is built around. You bring live client work. You leave with prompts, workflows and a system that survives contact with a Monday morning.

The part nobody posts about: the hour where it clicks. 🧠

One day. Your own client work. ChatGPT and Claude, used properly.

Email — subject lines

1. A full day rebuilding how you work with AI
2. Bring a real brief. Leave with a system.
3. [N] seats, [CITY], [DATE]
4. The AI workshop for marketers who've moved past the demo

Email — opening paragraph

You've read the threads, watched the demos, and probably pasted a brief into ChatGPT to see what came back. This is the next step: a full day in a room with other marketing professionals, working on your own client projects, with ChatGPT and Claude open and someone experienced looking over your shoulder.
